Itinerant trade - Notify activities that do not require an itinerant trade card

No itinerant trade licence is required for certain activities in the itinerant trade sector. These are referred to as 'activities exempt from the itinerant trade licence requirement'. These activities are exempt from the obligation to hold an itinerant trade licence.

In the municipality of Berlin, for example, this applies to:

- the sale of food or other everyday goods, provided these are sold from non-fixed, i.e. mobile, sales points at regular, short intervals at the same location.
- the sale of printed matter on public paths, roads, squares or in other public places, e.g. newspaper sellers.

For all other activities in the itinerant trade, you must otherwise apply for a licence (an itinerant trade licence) (see "More information").

Procedure

1. You must notify the competent public order office that you are exercising an activity that does not require a itinerant trade licence. You can submit the notification by post or online. To do so, you must use the prescribed official forms in accordance with the Trade Regulation Ordinance.
2. The competent public order office will review your notification and confirm receipt.

Important note

You must also submit a notification if

1. You change the nature of your business or extend it to goods or services that are not customary in your previously registered business, or if you relocate your place of business within Berlin.
2. You cease your activities not requiring a travelling trade licence entirely or relocate them to a place of business outside Berlin.

Prerequisites

- Exercise of activities that do not require an itinerant trade card (https://www.gesetze-im-internet.de/gewo/_55a.html) compare with § 55a section 1 no. 3, 9 or 10 of the trade regulations (Gewerbeordnung).
Attention: No. 3 does not apply to residence/business in the municipality of Berlin due to the larger number of inhabitants.
- To apply online: Register or log in using your BundID account
