Travel document - Reissue

Travel documents issued by an authority for non-residents include in particular

- travel document for foreign nationals (Reiseausweis für Ausländer)
- travel document for refugees (Reiseausweis für Flüchtlinge)
- travel documents for stateless persons (Reiseausweis für Staatenlose)

Travel documents are issued with biometric features and cannot be extended. Therefore, after their validity has expired, a new travel document must be issued. Only travel documents with a validity period of up to one year (temporary travel document) are issued without biometric features.

Period of validity:

The maximum period of validity of a travel document for foreign nationals is

- for children under 12 years: six years, at the latest until their 12th birthday
- for persons who are between 12 and 24 years old at the time of issuance: six years
- for persons who are 24 years or older at the time of issuance: ten years

Travel documents for refugees and stateless persons can generally only be issued for a maximum of three years.

Furthermore, a travel document may not be valid for a longer period than the residence permit that was issued or will be issued.

Note on travel documents for foreign nationals:

- Foreign nationals from non-EU countries can be issued with a German substitute passport in the form of a travel document for foreign nationals in the case that it is not reasonably possible to obtain from the authorities of the country of origin a passport or substitute passport.
- If the state of non-possession of a passport is only temporary, then a travel document for foreigners can only be issued if compelling reasons exist for this.

Prerequisites

• Acquisition of a (national) passport must be unreasonable

A passport or substitute passport from the country of origin cannot provably be obtained in a reasonable manner. A reasonable manner constitutes in particular the timely application to the relevant authorities of the country of origin for the issuance or extension of the passport, and the payment of the fees stipulated for this.

In the case of foreign nationals recognised as refugees (in the meaning of the Geneva Refugee Convention) or stateless persons (in the meaning of the Convention on Stateless Persons) it is assumed that the acquisition of a passport would be unreasonable or impossible.

• Lawfulness of the residence

The foreign national is either in possession of a residence title or will receive one together with their travel document.
