Security screening for classified information in the business sector in the state of Berlin

Your company has received an order from a public customer that is related to a security-related area. You and your employees that will be involved in handling the order must undergo a security check.

The purpose of a security check is to protect facts, objects and findings of public interest against unauthorised access.

Security-related activities are performed by those, who:

- have access to classified information that is rated TOP SECRET, SECRET or SENSITIVE, or
- are working in a part of an authority or other public state body that has been declared a security area.

Depending on the level of secrecy, there are three different types of security check:

1. Simple security check for SENSITIVE
2. Expanded security check for SECRET
3. Expanded security check with security investigations for TOP SECRET

Checks are performed upon request, the procedure has two stages.

The security check must be updated every 5 years and repeated every 10 years.

Procedure:

Stage 1: Company audit

1. The contracting authority submits an application to the Senate Department for Economics in Berlin for admission to the Secret Security Service of the State of Berlin with the appropriate security level SENSITIVE, SECRET or TOP SECRET for a company that is to operate in security-relevant areas.
2. The Senate Administration for Economics concludes a public-law contract with the contractor for admission to the Secret Security Service.
3. The company proposes a security officer and a deputy who are exclusively responsible within the company for the inspection of all employees and their instructions. He/she is the contact person for the senate administration responsible for economic affairs.
4. First of all, the company has to submit the evidence mentioned for level 1 (see "Required documents").
5. After the security check of the company's organs (shareholder, managing director, security officer and deputy) has been completed, the company will be accepted into the Secret Security Service of the State of Berlin and will receive a security certificate. The company's organs are authorised to access classified information of the respective classification level.

Stage 2: Safety check of the deployed staff

1. The company's staff that will be involved in safety-relevant work is then

- checked upon request.
2. The evidence listed for Stage 2 is required for this purpose (see 'Required Documents').
 3. After the security check for the relevant staff members has been performed, they are also granted access to classified information of the respective level of secrecy.

Notes on responsibility

The Senate Department for Economics is responsible for all companies, regardless of their headquarters, that have been awarded a contract for a security-relevant area of the State of Berlin. If there is already a secrets protection service of another federal state or the federal government, this state or the federal government is responsible for the security service. Duplicate support should be excluded.
