Apply for the recognition of foreign professional qualifications as a solicitor

Lawyers advise and represent clients in all legal matters. In court proceedings, they represent the interests of their clients and, at the same time, as organs of the administration of justice, support judges in finding justice.

Lawyers work

- in law firms
- in auditing firms and accountancy firms
- in companies in almost all sectors of the economy
- in interest groups, associations and organisations
- at professional academies such as the Lawyers' Academy

The profession of "Lawyer (in German: Rechtsanwalt)" is regulated by the state in Germany. You may apply for the recognition of an equivalent professional qualification as a prerequisite for admission to the profession of lawyer in Germany if you

- have completed professional training which entitles you to direct access to the profession of European lawyer, and
- if less than half of the minimum period of training was completed in a member state of the European Union, another state party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area or Switzerland: have practised the profession of a European lawyer for at least three years in the state which issued or recognised the evidence of admission qualification.

You can have this qualification recognised. With this recognition, you may work as a lawyer in Germany. If your training differs significantly from the requirements, you must first take an aptitude test.

Procedure

1. Submit an application for the determination and recognition of an equivalent professional qualification from abroad.
2. The Examinations Office confirms receipt of the application within one month and, if applicable, informs you if any documents or records are missing.
3. The Examinations Office decides on the application no later than 4 months after receipt of all required documents.
4. The Examinations Office requires the applicant to take an aptitude test if
  - their training related to subjects which differ substantially from those required for practising the profession of lawyer in Germany, and
  - these differences are not otherwise compensated for, in particular through professional practice or further training measures.

Prerequisites

- Foreign professional qualification as a European lawyer
