Court Interpreter - Apply for General Swearing-in

If you want to work as a court interpreter in Germany, you need a special professional qualification as an interpreter. And you must be sworn in as a court interpreter by the competent court.

As a court interpreter, you translate orally from German into another target language and vice versa. In this way, you overcome language barriers.

Procedure:

1. You apply for the general swearing-in as a court interpreter with the required documents. You can fill out the application completely online, upload the required documents and send them directly to the competent body electronically.
2. After receiving the minimum fee, the competent office will check whether you meet the requirements for the general swearing-in on the basis of your information and evidence. You will receive information on the further procedure, such as documents that need to be submitted, and will be informed of the current processing status by e-mail.
3. After receipt of payment, you will receive a letter of invitation by post from the competent office with the date for the general swearing-in, for which you must appear in person.
4. Court interpreters must take an oath for their work.
5. After taking the oath, you will be issued with a certificate (certified copy of the transcript) which officially legitimises you as a court interpreter. The oath is issued for a limited period of five years. It can be extended for a further five years on application before expiry.
6. You will also be registered as a sworn court interpreter in the Interpreter and Translator Database (see "Further information"). There you can be found publicly with your language mediation services for courts. You can decide in your application which data should be published in the database of interpreters and translators.

Prerequisites

- Residence or professional establishment in Berlin
- Professional competence

Proof of an interpreting examination taken in Germany by a state examination office or a university or an interpreting examination abroad recognised as equivalent by a German state authority.

- Personal suitability

You must prove the required personal reliability for your activity.

- Oath or affirmation
