The training professions (journeyman's examination) are not regulated.

You do not have to recognise your professional qualification in order to be able to work in the profession with employers in Germany. However, an equivalence assessment has many advantages. It creates more transparency and equalisation for your professional qualification acquired abroad. It also improves your career and entry opportunities on the German labour market. The requirements and procedure for training occupations are similar to those for master craftsman professions.

You can also be entered in the Register of Craftsmen with a professional qualification from another country. For this, you must have your professional qualification recognised by the Chamber of Crafts. In the recognition procedure, the Chamber of Crafts compares your foreign professional qualification with the German professional qualification.

The recognition procedure is called "equivalence assessment".

What is an equivalence assessment?

You have the right to a recognition procedure. The procedure is called

"equivalence assessment".

The competent Chamber of Crafts checks whether your professional qualification is equivalent to the German professional qualification (journeyman's examination in craft law in Germany). The competent authority compares the qualifications using certain criteria. Important criteria are the content and duration of the training. The competent Chamber of Crafts also takes your professional experience, your other certificates of competence and qualifications into account when assessing equivalence.

You will receive notification of the result of the procedure. The notification will state any existing and any missing professional qualifications. However, you will not receive a master craftsman title.

After a successful equivalence assessment, you can be entered in the Register of Craftsmen (see More information) and start working permanently and independently in this profession that requires a licence.

Procedure:

1. If you would like to work in the skilled crafts sector in Berlin, submit an application for equivalence assessment to the relevant Berlin Chamber of Crafts. You can also submit the application for equivalence assessment online from another country. The responsible Chamber of Crafts will inform you which documents may need to be submitted as certified copies. Please do not send any originals by post. If documents are not available in German, a German translation is also required.
2. The Chamber of Crafts will check the documents and determine whether and to what extent your professional qualification from abroad is equivalent to the German professional qualification in the skilled crafts sector.
3. After paying the administrative fees, you will receive a notification with the result of the recognition assessment procedure. Possible results may be
 - a.) You will be recognised if your professional qualification and the German professional qualification are equivalent.
 - b.) Sometimes there are significant differences between the professional qualifications. The differences are listed in your notification. You can use this decision to obtain further qualifications and later submit a new application for equivalence assessment.
 - c.) If your professional qualification is not equivalent at all, you will not be recognised.

Notes:

- This recognition procedure is mainly suitable for third-country nationals.
- For nationals of the European Union (EU), the European Economic Area (EEA) and Switzerland, there is another recognition procedure: The granting of an exceptional authorisation in accordance with Section 9 (1) No. 1 HwO (see More information).
- Regardless of the equivalence check, if you want to start self-employed work in the skilled crafts sector in Berlin, you must register with the relevant Chamber of Crafts in the register of skilled crafts requiring authorisation (Handwerksrolle). These are different procedures, more information can be
